

Children's Justice Act Funds
HOW TO APPLY
January 1, 2027 –December 31, 2027

Funding Guidelines

The Children's Justice Task Force (CJTF), in collaboration with Department of Children, Youth and Families, is accepting Letters of Interest (LOI) from organizations that have projects or would like to create a project to meet our priority for the 2026-2027 cycle. The CJTF determines a priority area of funding each cycle.

To strengthen Washington State's response to child maltreatment, the Children's Justice Task Force prioritizes funding the projects that deliver advanced, role-specific training focused on the early stages of child welfare cases. Eligible initiatives must support intake, assessment, investigation, treatment, and multidisciplinary support efforts. Funding may be used to develop curricula and conduct training for professionals in advocacy, health and mental health services, prosecution, child protection services, and law enforcement, particularly those involved in identifying, intervening in, and treating suspected cases of child abuse and neglect. All proposed activities must directly enhance the safety and protection of children through specialized skill development and interagency coordination.

Projects may include, but are not limited to some of the criteria listed below:

1. Provide specialized training for professionals involved in the response for child victims.
2. One time training or series of training and/or consultation.
3. One year in length.

Final funding will be given to projects that meet the above criteria, with priority given to projects that have a statewide impact. We will only fund organizations operating and located in Washington State.

We will fund up to three projects during the funding cycle. Before submitting a Letter of Intent (LOI), please carefully review all of the funding guidelines to determine whether your proposal matches our funding priority.

Contract Award

Any contract issued as a result of this solicitation will be at the sole discretion of the Children's Justice Task Force in collaboration with the Department of Children, Youth and Families. At any time, they may reject any and all letters of interest or proposals and issue no contract(s) for this solicitation. Approximately $115,000 is available to fund projects that meet the outlined criteria. We anticipate funding three projects with award amounts not to exceed $38,000. Awardees will be required to provide one semi-annual progress report at the mid-point by July 15th, 2027, and one final report by January 15th, 2027.

Application Process

The Children’s Justice Task Force and Department of Children, Youth and Families will not pay any costs associated with preparing or presenting any proposal in response to this solicitation. Any interested applicants must follow the guidelines outlined in the proceeding section. The CJTF and Department of Children, Youth and Families are unable to review requests for funding that do not comply with these guidelines.
